Telemetry Group

The Telemetry Group (TG) has responsibility for the standards, test methods, and handbooks used to operate, maintain, and sustain interoperable systems on ranges. These systems are used to acquire, record, process, and display test data. This includes transducers, signal conditioning, multiplexing, networking, recording, transmitting, and receiving equipment. The overall goal of the TG is to foster interoperability of telemetry systems through common standards and practices.